

October 23, 2018 2:58 PM

Stiff constraints with a 10% tolerance are added between each pair of connected points forming the contour of the figure. Additionally, more flexible constraints (40% tolerance) are added between every second point within a contiguous segment, in order to keep the overall structure from deforming too much.